Music Proposal

Over the next year, we'll be working with you on your wedding soundtrack. Building on our experience of what works and what doesn't, we'll guide in the repertoire selection process from closing guest arrivals to closing song.

Most of the suggestion acts below are open to learning new repertoire, so if you've got something specific in mind, let us know. While we'll try out best to accommodate your vision, we'll also be honest when we feel something won't work musically or is not possible.

Ceremony

Reflecting the ceremony you envision, we suggest using a string quartet to welcome guests to the ceremony area performing a 15-20 minute set of classical and contemporary pieces

Then for your processional, we'd like to put forward Ethan Florus on vocals to perform Cinematic's Orchestra's To Build a Home

Pre-drinks

Building on the emotion created at the ceremony, this period allows guests to catch up with friends and family while taking in their surroundings. The music during this time should animate and enliven those conversations not interfere or compete with them.

Based on our conversation, we could keep Ethan on for the pre-drinks but change things up by including an accompanying band including saxophone, bass and drums.

Reinterpreting and performing a wide range of songs from Drake's Hot Line Bling to Alicia Key's If I Ain't Got You, Ethan Florus brings warmth and soul to his performances in a refreshing way.

The alternative would be to keep the strings on for the pre-drinks but we'd need to think about the set-list carefully as there's a risk the repertoire becomes monotonous.

One way to achieve this would be combine the string quartet with a rhythm section as this would open up the repertoire to include the Marvin Gaye, Luther Vandross and Beatles songs we discussed.

Dinner, dance and party

While guests enjoy dinner, a DJ will play selected tracks, facilitating flow around speeches.

Directly following your first dance, we'd open the dance floor with a music selection that caters to both young and old. Progressively, the DJ will take the music in more contemporary direction.

We have three options for you to consider.

Rus Nerwich (DJ)

Hailing from Cape Town, saxophonist, composer, producer and DJ Rus Nerwich has established himself as one of South Africa's most creative and prolific recording and performing artists.

Crossing genres from jazz and funk to world music and neo-soul, Rus' style is diverse, engaging and constantly evolving.
